InterGlobe Technology Quotient launches 4th edition of Student of the Year Contest

Dec 15th 2016: InterGlobe Technology Quotient (ITQ) with its initiative to bring top talents to the travel trade, launches its 4th edition of Student of the Year Contest, inviting entries from all travel schools across India, from students who have been trained on Travelport's Galileo GDS (Global Distribution System).

First launched in 2013, Student of the Year has grown through the years with extensive support from the travel industry and the academies. It has received stupendous success by bringing in best professionals, thereby reducing the gap of potential talent finding its way to companies.

The contest has offered a unique platform to the travel industry aspirants to test their skills, confidence and knowledge by delving deeper into the intricacies of the trade and redefining their abilities as travel professionals. They are also given a clear view of the limitless possibilities, the future holds.

ITQ with its strong association with esteemed members of the travel trade ensures the best performing individuals get a place to kick start their career and make the best of what the industry has to offer.
