Travelport, the business services provider to the global travel industry, today announces a long term renewal with National Travel Systems, a Lubbock, TX-based travel management company specializing in education, sports, government and missionary travel.

Under the terms of the agreement, Travelport will continue as National Travel System's travel technology partner and provide access to travel content including air, hotel, car rental and cruise lines via its Apollo platform.

The agreement also provides National Travel Systems with several strategic solutions including Travelport Rapid Reprice™ (ARNE), an automated ticket repricing product.

Richard Cooper, president, National Travel Systems, said, "Travelport is a longstanding, trusted GDS partner. Our continued relationship with them remains integral to the on-going, long-term success of our business. This new agreement is a reflection of the confidence we have in Travelport's innovative technology solutions, content and dedicated support, which we believe lead the industry and are best suited for our further growth."

Scott Hyden, regional managing director, The Americas, said, "We are delighted to extend Travelport's long-standing partnership with National Travel. We are investing in new technology to respond to emerging trends to provide our customers with the solutions they need in order to grow and succeed."
